

Measuring for delivery - will it fit?

We want you to be delighted with your latest Feather & Black purchase and don't want you to suffer the heartache of discovering that it will not fit into your property. Therefore, please take a few moments to be absolutely certain that it will.

Whilst the item may fit perfectly in your bedroom, you need to be sure that it will pass through the lowest and narrowest restrictions in your house to get there.

The lowest point may be a doorway, but will often be somewhere on the staircase. The smallest measurement is not necessarily a vertical measurement from stair treads, but often the distance between the lowest point of the ceiling over the stairs, taken at 90° to the angle of your stairs.

Now thinking of the width of your chosen product, the narrowest point to consider will often involve the staircase again, particularly where there is a turn. This will be a measurement taken across a corner where two walls meet, at the point where an obstruction, such as a bannister, is met.
